Workshop on Developing Effective Communication Skills Writing skills

As an initiative towards capacity building and skill enhancement among students, the Department of English organized a workshop on 'Developing Effective Communication Skills: Writing skills', on 24 September 2021. As the resource person for this event Asst Prof Banpreet Kaur steered our students through the basic elements of effective communication and helped them write an impressive resume.

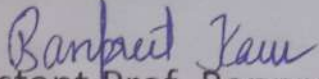

The Workshop was started off with the evolution of the communication process and stressed on how the behavior and tonal quality plays a crucial role in setting the mood of the conversation. She presented a video that highlighted the importance of proper gestures and eye-hand coordination as key elements in any discourse. The session involved a fun activity that aimed to promote teamwork and active listening skills among students.

The session then moved over to the next important element of the workshop, which was building an impressive resume. It was clarified the deep-rooted misconception about the two terms that are synonymously used: CV and resume. It was explained that curriculum Vitae pertains to specific domains, while a resume is typically not area-specific and is always much shorter than CVs. Furthermore, it was also discussed how to build a unique CV and create an impressionable image during interviews. The session was quite enriching and informative, especially for our students who are on the threshold of their professional lives.

Interpersonal Skills

Interpersonal skills refer to student's ability to interact and communicate in an organization. Students develop these skills over time by socializing in different environments and with different people. Research proves that students with strong interpersonal skills are highly efficient and successful in their professional lives.

In fact, interpersonal skills form the foundation for good professional and social relationships. Interpersonal skills include a wide range of skills that include verbal and non-verbal communication skills, teamwork, mediation and resolution, and decision-making.

This short course is designed to teach you how to communicate with the people you work with in ways that shows confidence and gives them a sense of trust.

The English Department of the College conducted training sessions for students to improve their interpersonal skills on 2nd to 22nd March. The topics covered were

- Art of communication and Listening Skills
- Time Management Skills

The sessions began with a team building activity where students played the role of employees of a company. Interactive workshops, role-playing exercises, and group discussions were utilized to explore different communication styles and techniques. Emphasis was placed on active listening, non-verbal communication, and overcoming communication barriers. The next training sessions covered topics such as professional dress codes, networking etiquette and professional correspondence. The last training session explored different conflict resolution styles, negotiation techniques, and strategies for managing difficult conversations.

The training program proved very valuable in equipping participants with professional skills essential for success in today's dynamic workplace. Asst. Prof. Banpreet Kaur was in charge of the training sessions.

BUSINESS COMMUNICATION

The internet often plays a huge part in students' daily activities, allowing them to communicate freely with others and share information with ease via messaging apps, social media and gaming networks. With so much of their lives playing out online, it is important for young students to consider how their online behaviour and choices can have an impact on themselves, and others.

To create awareness about Business Correspondence to the young minds, the department of English had arranged a soft skills course on "Business Communication". Dr Jaspal Singh was the facilitator. He elaborated on the importance of business communication and netiquettes with many live examples. The session was very much well received and appreciated by the students. Prof. Banpreet Kaur was the convenor of the course. Altogether 50 students benefited from this Course.

Soft Skills

CRITICAL THINKING

English Department successfully organized a Soft Skills course on "Critical Thinking & Innovation Design". The event aimed to provide participants with a comprehensive understanding and practical skills in three interconnected areas: design thinking, critical thinking, and innovation design.

The event witnessed active participation from 50 students and faculty members. The objectives were clear: to promote a structured and human-centred approach to problem-solving, cultivate disciplined and analytical thinking, and encourage the creation of novel solutions through innovative design.

This course delivered numerous benefits to participants. It enhanced holistic problem-solving skills by integrating various methodologies, fostered an innovative mind-set, and emphasized a user-centric approach. Through interdisciplinary projects and diverse perspectives, collaboration and teamwork skills were honed. The event also focused on improving communication skills and cultivating

The workshop also featured fun activities aimed at team-building, talent acquisition, and fostering teamwork cultures within organizations. Attendees engaged in interactive sessions, ensuring a dynamic learning environment.

The workshop successfully achieved its objectives, providing participants with valuable skills and insights applicable to real-world scenarios. The event not only enriched the participants' knowledge but also provided networking opportunities, paving the way for future collaborations and idea exchanges. The success of this course reinforces the course's commitment to holistic education and the development of practical skills among its students.
